Quarterly Newsletter - Spring Issue

We appreciate photography as an art.

We communicate ideas through photography.

We network to inspire each other.

We use photography to serve the community.

In the last few months, we experienced, for most of us first in our life time pandemic. Due to it, we were shelter-in-place at home, and many of our club activities could not be held - like seminar at church, and outdoor photography, etc. Despite of the SIP, our club continued to have our monthly seminar and other events using Zoom. We were fortunate to invite many good photographers to present the photography seminars. Many of the events (seminars and SIGs) were recorded and shared with the club members.

Our club member, Lily came up with a creative idea having daily theme photo posting in Line, people were very active in sharing their photos. Serena also invested her time in hosting weekly theme session every week. Many beautiful images were created from these events – there are links in this newsletter that you can see the photos.

Message from President

- BOON TAN

Once we are thru with this SIP, it will be an unforgettable time for us. Now that many parks are opening up, it is a good time to go out to take photos since there are not too many people. Instead of organizing group outings, our club is providing information of the location and time to take photos, such as sunflowers and milky way in our recent SIG meeting. Looking forward to seeing many beautiful images from all of you guys. Don't forget to maintain social distancing, and stay safe while taking your photos.

Why do you take photos? A Korean novel I read lately writes: people come and go, everything flows, and nothing stays. Except “book” in words is permanent. The same goes for photography! Touching photo is fascinating and unforgettable, isn't it? My intention of learning photography is to capture the beautifulness of life. When looking back at end of life journey, I hope to see albums of splendidness, not “regret”.

Should we illustrate moving story through photography? Why don't we portray history in photos? Let's use camera to capture the blissful moment in life together 😊

When I was driving passing a field in South San Jose on a late afternoon in May, I saw those hay stacks in the field, which reminded me of the impressionist paintings by Miller, Van Gough, etc. So I stopped my car, took my camera out, and caught this scene at sunset.

Sunrise at "The Last Eden"

Serengeti National Park 塞倫蓋蒂國家公園 in Tanzania meant “land of endless space” by the local Maasai people 馬賽人 with great sea of grass, and the size is bigger than the state of Connecticut. It is also known as “the last Eden” 最後的伊甸園. This volcanic rocky landscape provides us with the ultimate in game viewing: elephants, giraffe, zebra, wildebeest, lions, leopard, cheetah, warthog, secretary birds, ostrich, crane, eagles, and a lot more. During the raining season (Nov. through May), two million migratory wildebeest, zebras and Thomson’s gazelles moved through the area.

Springtime Visitor

We finished landscaping our new garden last November. This spring all the flowers started blooming which brought many birds, bees, and butterflies to our backyard.

Last week (May 29) my husband found a small nest with 2 tiny eggs on a Bougainvillea stem on the porch of my house. We wondered what could be so small. Later we found a hummingbird sitting on the nest!

I was so thrilled and waited for the mother bird to leave her nest so I could photograph it, and later I took photos of the mother bird when she returned. As of today (June 4th, 2020), the baby birds have not hatched yet.

Bullock's Oriole (male) The bird is solitary or in small groups. Forages widely for caterpillars, fruit, and nectar in low brush and in tree. Note bright orange color, white wing-bar, slender bluish, and mostly orange tail. Bullock's Oriole spreads from the western Great Plains to the Pacific Coast. This oriole is common in summer in treetops, along rivers, lowland woods.

有朋自遠方來 不亦樂乎

It was during pandemic, a difficult time for photographer to go out. I went to HomeDepot to purchased humming bird feeder and filled with sugar water, made it super sweet. Then patiently wait for bird to showed up. Luckily, after 3 days of waiting. A beautiful humming came to my garden. After that, it was every day and happily ever after.

Taking wildlife birds photos is a challenge, yet it also relies so much on the luck. I was lucky happening to see this humming bird just flying right in front of me when I was in my garden. Indeed it is just a luck. But the joy in seeing such an interesting humming bird is beyond I can described. This photo certainly adds a valuable memory to my garden photo collections. I am happy to share it with you.

In north hemisphere, days become longer and nights get shorter from April through June. Sometimes, sky sprays shower and moistens the land that has just gone through the coldness and winter. The earth starts to turn green and colorful. Lives awaken and nature sprouts. Spring has arrived! Weather is pleasant and wind gently breezes at this time of the year. It is a great season to capture beautiful scenery.

Yet ... due to Covid-19, we cannot travel or go to parks and take spring photography in this year. Despite anxious situation and Coronavirus pandemic, 101 Photo Club utilized internet social and communication platforms to host many workshops and seminars during shelter-in-place period. Through these photography activities, the stay-at-home living that was originally thought to be boring and dull while maintaining social distancing becomes enriched and fulfilled.

We could not go out during stay-home and social distancing order, yet 101 Photo Club members got to “travel” through seven continents and got to “see” the mystic of universe. Through “Daily Theme Photography” activity, countless impressive and touching photos were uploaded to our LINE App social group. In the past spring, every morning we were looking forward to where we would visit today. Which season of the year would come today? What sensation experience would daily theme bring?

Thank you to president Boon for taking great effort and downloading all these photos from LINE App's album, one by one. Below is the link of Google Photos where these Daily Theme's photos are stored.

Master Serena's "Theme Photography Workshop"

(Click on title and view the photos)

Master Serena has been offering online photography workshop to 101 Photo Club members during shelter-in-place period. The class meeting and homework critique are held every Thursday evening - regularly and uninterruptedly - starting from April 1st. We really appreciate her hard work and that she has spent much time in preparing the detailed instructions and thoughtful topics for weekly theme classes. Serena has also selected outstanding photos out of all students' homework and offer them for all club members through 101 Photo Club's official website.
